PREFACE

THIS little volume contains two narratives, one a plain unvarnished tale, which is not without human interest as a record of suffering for the Christian faith; the other partaking somewhat of the character of a romance, which, but for its religious setting, would have done no discredit to a volume of the Thousand and One Nights. The chief value of both, as I am told by Dr Friedrich Schulthess, is a linguistic one; for they are the only non-biblical documents of any length which have come down to us in the Palestinian-Syriac dialect.

I have to thank Dr Nestle for his unfailing kindness in reading my proof-sheets, and for more than one wise suggestion; Dr Friedrich Schulthess, for bringing his unrivalled experience in this Palestinian dialect, and his keen powers of insight, to bear on puzzling questions; and my dear sister, Mrs Margaret Dunlop Gibson, for clearing away unsuspected misprints; also the Reader and Printers of the Cambridge University Press, for their careful work.

INTRODUCTION

THE two stories in this volume are taken from a manuscript which I purchased in Egypt in the month of April 1906 along with the more important one which I have edited under the title of Codex Climaci Re-scriptus, as No. VIII of this series. Both MSS. are palimpsests, and the under-script of both is in that dialect of Syriac which, as Bar-Hebraeus tells us, was called by the people who spoke it Palestinian, and which was the mother tongue of our Lord, and was doubtless identical with the Galilean speech which "betrayed" St Peter to the company in the court of Caiaphas, in that terrible hour when he fell, through fear, into the greatest sin of his life. In neither MS. has the date been preserved, for in both the final leaves have been lost. Only from the characteristics of the later writing can we tell at what period the earlier one came into being. The Edessene Syriac text which overlies the Palestinian one of Codex Climaci is assigned, with very good reason, by Mr A. G. Ellis and Rev. G. Margoliouth of the British Museum, to the ninth century A.D. Its under-script cannot be much later than the sixth century A.D., and it is therefore the earliest document of any length in the dialect, as it is also the only one which gives us a continuous text of some of the Pauline Epistles.

The present text is, we think, a century later, and its upper-script is Arabic, not Syriac. The handwriting is a somewhat rare specimen of Christian Arabic, which is easily assigned to the beginning of the tenth century. Its characteristics will easily be understood by a study of the facsimile which I have given (see page 53). It is by no means easy to read, for in addition to its Cufic sads and dads, it has a ṣ, a ḍ, a ṭ, and a ḏ furnished with a tall limb something like that of an initial Ṣ, for which letter the unwary might mistake them. It is also very closely written; for evidently in the tenth century vellum had become scarce. I have not been able to identify it in any way. I can only see that it is a theological treatise; the record of a dispute between a Christian and an unbeliever. Like most literature of its class and period, it contains numerous mistakes in spelling and grammar. There are also many erasures, some of which will be observed in the facsimile. The reason of these, so far as I can judge, is that the unbeliever was often very irreverent in speaking of the Lord Jesus Christ; and possibly the Christian repeated some of his phrases.

If we are satisfied that this Arabic upper-script should be assigned to the early part of the tenth century, we may easily guess that the under one belongs to the seventh. By no ingenuity can we place it earlier, for the second story contains a definite and well-known historical date, on page 76 of this book, that of the death of the Emperor Justinus I and the accession of Justinianus I, his nephew and adopted son, both of these events taking place in A.D. 527.

I therefore think that the text of this MS. must have been written a little more than 100 years after the events which it records. The massacre of the monks at Raithô might well happen in the first fervour of the Saracenic tribes, after their conversion to Islâm; and though the tale of Eulogios is somewhat fanciful, I see no reason to doubt that it is probably founded on an actual occurrence, and may be looked on in the light of a historical romance, where the supernatural has been brought in to explain the sudden rise and equally sudden fall of a man who meant well, but whose head was turned by the pride and splendour of the position to which his wealth had enabled him to climb. If he really found a hidden treasure, it may possibly have been a store of turquoises, left near Sarâbit el Kâdim by some Egyptian miner, or the hoard of a pilgrim who had lost his clue to its hiding-place; like the owner of a small store of copper coins found near the top of Jebel Musa, and now in my own possession.

When the "Martyrs of Raithô" and the story of the "Pledge of Eulogios" were written, vellum was plentiful. The leaves of the original MS. measure 9 inches by 8, i.e. 22½ centimetres by 20, yet it contains on a page only two columns of 22 short lines each; as the lines have often only one word, or at the most two in them, this gives about 63 words to a page.

The tenth century scribe, who wrote a Christian work in Arabic, could not afford to spread out his text in this fashion. He began by folding his leaves, so as to turn each into two conjugates, and on each of these he wrote about 34 lines of Arabic in one column, as closely as he possibly could. The result is that his pages are only half the size of the original ones, and measure 8 inches by nearly 4½, or 20 centimetres by 11. Each line contains from 7 to 9 words, and each page approximately 270 words. Thus 540 Arabic words overlie 63 of the original Syriac.

The story of the massacre at Raithô was recorded by Ammonius. It can lay no claim to any grace of style, and is the work of a contemporary chronicler rather than that of a historian. Its Greek and Latin text will be found in the pages of Combes; but these, as well as the Syriac, were translated by Ammonius himself from the Egyptian or Coptic.

The tale of Eulogios cannot, of course, be literally true; yet it contains a practical lesson. I myself have known persons in real life who were most estimable and useful when in a humble station, but who, when raised to a position of affluence by some injudicious friend, displayed qualities that were not so admirable.

This palimpsest MS. has incidentally served a purpose for which it was not intended. Like the Pyramids, it has been the age-long tomb of a once living thing. I was obliged to cut all the cords which bound its quires together. While doing so I found, embedded between two of its leaves, a large moth, which must have crept in when the book was open, and been squeezed to death perhaps nearly 1000 years ago. I showed it to Dr A. E. Shipley, now Master of Christ's College, Cambridge, who told me that it is a species of Polyodon, one of the common noctuid moths, and that Dr Sharp thinks it may possibly have been in the MS. since the tenth century. Its colouring was exactly that of the leaves which had so long enshrouded it; and I have adorned my title-page with its portrait.

There is little to say about the quires, for they belong to the later script only. They all consist of 8 leaves, for though the second appears to have 6 and the fourth 2, I suspect that the man from whom I bought it, disarranged them by making a slit in the conjugate pair whose leaves I have mistakenly numbered 23 and 24. He cut them for the purpose of sending them about as specimens; and they contain the story of Eulogios finding the treasure. The vellum is fine but strong.

In compiling a Glossary of the new words and forms which appear in Codex Climaci, and in this text (Hebræe Semitice VIII and IX), I take the opportunity both of accepting a few emendations suggested by Dr Hugo Duensing, and of justifying myself in regard to some words which he has declared to be errors in my transcription¹. Critics, it will be observed, are quite as liable to make mistakes as editors are; and this frequently happens when they have given too hasty a consideration to a subject. The occurrence of several passages, however, where Dr Duensing has been able to point out an undoubted slip in the text of the MS., shows that Codex Climaci is not the autograph of the translator, but is a copy of his work; and that we must place the date of the Palestinian version much earlier than the sixth century, to which period Dr Burkitt, with no sufficient proof, has assigned it. Dr Noldeke's hypothesis, that it belongs to the fourth century, is nearer the truth, though we cannot say that it is absolutely certain.

THE FORTY MARTYRS OF THE SINAI DESERT

PART I

THE FORTY MARTYRS OF THE SINAI DESERT

[It is necessary if Arians the monks concerning the Holy Fathers are deceived by a wall of the Barbarians on Mount Sinai and Herbs]

It occurred to me, my beloved, in a time when I was storing my humble cell in the desert of the Sinai a place called Canopus, that I would undertake a journey into the desert for in this place that I was to see with my eyes but not with my senses, and the danger which was early caused to the faithful by the cruelty of wicked tyrants, and certainly, every holy President Peter when he sought hiding places from this place, he secured safety by the good which he carried with him, so that he was for the feeding of his flock besides this, so I was also inspired by a desire to survey the venerable places and a proposal for honoring the Holy Scriptures, to the vivifying and reviving Resurrection, and the other holy places in which our Lord Jesus the Christ walked about, and effected His tremendous mysteries.

So I, I turned a little aside to access the holy places, and having been refreshed and aided by all the works of God and having fulfilled my view that I might profit by the holy places.]

Of this, I was held worthy to witness also in the holy place of the Holy Trinity. But I desire to mention to the desert with people who feared God, if I have not written that I pray. Now we are here, by the grace of God, for forty days. And then I had passed I returned to the Holy Trinity, and I enjoy the privilege of the Holy Fathers who [were] there for I went with them to the Holy Trinity, because of the holiness of the Holy Trinity. And the week they sit in silence, but on the eve of the Holy Trinity, were assembled in the church, and accepting the Holy Myrrour, the Body and the Blood of the Lord [Jesus]. And in silence they went every man of them to his cell. And I, I am a part and also the Holy Trinity, and I am that I am. Their bodies are all of them very pallid, that the migrants have my body. And body is all that will. (1:14:40) And Sabbatone to select our hopes about the destiny of Israel. All that man or Sabbatone stretched out a hand to heaven as prayer and light upon. And a brother, light he said I have a lovely and a wonderful thing to say to you fathers.

And I will be a new people. I will be a new people. I will be a new people. and with your will I will be a new people. And in fact, was shining as a gate. And so I will be a new people. And so I will be a new people.

and so I will be a new people. And so I will be a new people. And so I will be a new people.

And he'd do some kind of a new thing, like, "I got it, and they told us that they'd give me a new car and a new house." And they would take care of me, for about a year, and then they'd say, "You've got to go and work for us now." I'd have to go and work for them, and they'd give me a new car and a new house. And they'd say, "You've got to go and work for us now." I'd have to go and work for them, and they'd give me a new car and a new house. And they'd say, "You've got to go and work for us now." I'd have to go and work for them, and they'd give me a new car and a new house.

[illegible]

And they all answered at Jesus' "Ye call our honoured Father; (cf. 36 b), as thou hast said unto us thus wilt we do. What shall we render unto the Lord for all that He hath given unto us?" "Ye will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the name of the Lord" (cf. 37) to the Lord.

And then our Father "lifted up his hands to heaven and said," "O Lord Jesus the Christ Son of the living God! I pray: We never hath forgotten The servants but remember our afflictions, and our poverty, and strengthen us in this hour of affliction, and receive our offering as a sacrifice as a sweet savour before Thee. For to Thee be oughts honour and glory for ever.

[Amen]

Then while we were saying Amen, a voice came as if from the altar, heard by us all, "Come unto Me all ye who labour, and are heavy laden, and I will restore you." At that voice, we staggered with terror; the hearts and the knees of all were loosened, which made it plain that the spirit was willing as the Lord said but the flesh was weak. But the eyes of all were fixed only on heaven: we were all overlooking in hope of this life. Then the Barbarians, as no one appeared to return the assault, climbed up over a heap of tree trunks, planks, and like stuff, and the door being opened ran in like ravening wolves, rage, rough as a dog with their wounds fresh gashed in their faces. But first they seized a certain man named Jeronam strong at the door of the Lord's church, and commanded him to name one of the soldiers a number who filled the city of interpreting to show which was our President. He being fearless at these things, but a little terrified, rather at the rough look of the Barbarians, or at the sharp points of the many swords, said: "I neither fear you, O proud ones, nor enemies of God nor I. I show you him whom ye seek, although I have been standing near me."

The Barbarians were astonished at the great boldness of the man, and the firm strength of his heart, that he did not fear them in the very east, but accused them with a free, bold, manly voice, and everywhere they beat him hard and foot and with their pikes to get and pierce him with such a run of arrows, that they left no place in his body free from arrows. Thus wrestling bravely against the devil he came to the crown first of all: the serpent's head being trampled to death, the serpent frustrated, having become a fine example to the saints. When our most holy Father first saw these things he came forward immediately shouting and saying: "I am he whom ye seek!" and he threw himself to them with his hands forgetting that he was he whom they sought. He declared himself thus, fearing nothing to see a brave servant of the Christ, he counted in his soul, rather the blessed men the tortures which the wicked men were going to bring in before the martyrs. Having therefore said I am, they asked, when was his money saints. But the Pharisees (f 66a) after they had gone to the Bernyres ^{p 46} had left their bodies in the shore of the sea to the beasts of the earth, and to the fowls of the heaven. But those of themselves who had been killed (f 71a) they collected, and made a great wall over them. And they buried them at the foot of the mountain above (f 66a) the springs of water in a day. And they came to the mountain as creeping and wailing as at the saints who were slain. And they entered and saw the bodies of the saints. Then they walked on weeping bitterly, seeing the blood of the Christ torn and flung (f 66b) upon the earth. But we were ^{p 47} a great fear seeing the blood that had struck the bodies of the saints the slaves of the Lord. And those who in their lives (f 71a) saw and the Christ, and in their deaths gave the blood of their lives that they might be filled with the Holy Spirit.

(f 66b) Beginning of a chapter. But Obad was the chief of Iordan with the great men of Basan brought very costly garments, and covered the bodies of the saints for they also had heard the word (f 71a) I was named, and they clothed me. But Dionysius was for Rame and the soldiers were (f 78a) thirty in all. And Dionysius who was for Rame his life ^{Matt 25. 28} was slain. And as those who were there took (f 41b) branches of palm trees, as I came to meet the saints. And with praise and with honour we buried them all (f 48a) in a certain place near the camp. And Dionysius died in the evening. And we buried him not with the saints but near them. The reason was (f 41c) that we could not open the grave and cast forth the bodies of the saints. But he was a martyr with them forty Martyrs (f 48b) of the Lord Jesus the Christ. To Whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

And Zacharie Andrew and Patrice and Orlie remained there (f 41a) in the place, debating in their minds whether they should go or stay. But I, because I was not able to endure the hardships of the ascent and the heat of that place, due to come from the grief for the fathers who were slain, I thought of going to Year Heliussus. And Ouzianus was a great lover (f 41a) of the Christ. He persuaded me to stay in the place, and he said unto me: I will care for thee and I will supply thy wants at all cry (f 34a) season. And I did ^{p 48} not stay because of the heat in that place, but I have said to you truly what I have said. (f 38a) Dionysius also told me what has happened in your neighbourhood to you concerning those who have been slain there.

And we to him all truly (f 34a) about what has happened amongst us in certain. And we marvelled at the wonderful things of God that thus on the same day and the saints (f 38b) both here and there were

EULOGIOS THE STONE-CUTTER

PART II

THE LIFE OF EULOGIOS THE EGYPTIAN, WHO WAS A STONE-CUTTER

FATHER DAMEL, the priest of Scete, said: Once upon a time I went to Thebas, with one of my disciples, and we sat (f 34 b) in a ship, and we p. 55 came down to the river. And when we arrived at a village the old man persuaded those who were in the ship for us to sit. "It is necessary that we should remain here to-day." And they agreed thereto. And his disciple began to murmur and said: "How long shall we go round about? Let us go to Scete?" (f 34 b) And the old man said: "Nay, but we will stay here to-day."
And they sat down in the midst of the village as is the custom of strangers.
And our brother said to the old man: "Is it pleasing (f 39 a) to God that we should sit like beggars? Let us go for a testimony." And the old man said: "Nay, but we will sit here."

For the old man (f 67 b) knew by the Spirit that Eulogios was coming from p. 56 Africa to his former places. And because of this the old man waited for him that other one. But he did not (f 70 a) know which was the place. And they waited sitting there until the evening. And they did not eat and they did not drink. And the brother began (f 67 b) to contend with the old man and he said: "Oh! because thou art a servant of the Christ, because of thee
I have to die."

And while they were talking a certain old man of the city came, tall of stature, (f 70 a) and full of years, and his head was white, and he was bent with age. And when he saw Father DAMEL, he ran and embraced him and began to kiss him. (f 67 a) And he wept and greeted his disciple. And he p. 57 said into them: "If ye are naming the Lord, come with me to my house."
And he carried a lantern, in which was a Lamp, and went round about (f 70 b) in that street of the town and sought for strangers. And he led the old man and his disciple and every stranger whom he found and brought them to his house (f 76 a) and washed the feet of the brethren and of the old man. But there was no man in his house, nor even in another place, save God only. And he set of 70 to a table before them. And when they were satisfied he took the crumbs and gave them to the dogs of the village. For thus he did, if 7a, and left nothing till the morning. And he brought the old man alone, and they sat talk' p 88 as the one was the other to the profit of the soul, if 7b, with many tears until the morning. And in the morning they saluted each other and went on the way. And as they were going, the way our brother made a repentance of 2a for his Abbot and said: 'Do me a favour, father, and tell me now that our man is whence dost thou know him?' And the old man said not wish to tell thee. Again if 7c our brother made a repentance and entrusted him saying: 'Thou hast revealed much good to me, father, and concerning this another thou hast not revealed to me, father.' For he saw, c 89 into if 2b, our brother made about the virtues of the saints, but the old man did not wish to reveal to our brother about that secret of God.

For the old brother was vexed and is not so kind with the other of man, as he came if 7d at 1. So our brother or they went to his cell, he did not take anything, and then he made a sign to him, for at close of dusk if 2b he revealed every day of his life, but when it was evening the demon came to our brother and said: 'Very my son, hast thou left thy father now to live if hunger?' And he said: 'I have if 7a) no father, for if I have a father, I would I see his son.'

And the old man said unto him: 'Then be in peace!' And the old p 89 man went and of a open city and go away. And our brother ran and he led him and began to kiss him and say: 'As God willeth, I will not leave thee, until the date if 75b he me was that old man was. For our brother could not see the old man must for he loved him much. And then he said unto him: 'Make me if 8a) some food and I will send thee to tell thee.'

And when the old man was eating, he said unto our brother: 'Be not stiff-necked, for because thou dost quarrel with me, I did not tell thee when we were of 7c sitting in the village, and I did not reveal it to thee. Thus do we sin, I repeat to thee, when what I say unto thee.'

And he said thus unto him if 2b. The old man is called Eulogios. And p 90 his craft is that of a stone mason. And he comes to the village every day, and fasts till the evening, fasting nothing. And in the evening if 75a) he comes to the village and every stranger whom he finds he brings him to his home and feeds them. And what is over he gives to the dogs if 8a) until to-day. And to-day he is a hundred and twenty years old. And he uses no cash every day.

When I was young forty years ago, if 75a) I went up to sell the work of my hands in this town in which we are. And in the evening he came and led me and the brethren who were with me as was his wont and refreshed if 68 a as being strangers. But when I came to my cell, and I knew the discipline of 69 the excellent man I fasted two weeks of 69 b and I persuaded Galt, give him a blessing that this 12 might refresh the brethren as he pleased. And when I had fasted three weeks I lay of 68 a like a dead man for much more than a day.

And I saw a man coming towards me in human form. And he said to me, "What's wrong with thee, Isaac?" And I saw a figure. "My Lord, I have given a voice to the Cause that I see not at all. And I tell thee, because I have given the stone away, that this has become mine." I was somewhat in a quandary as to what to say. And he said to me, "It is we." And I said unto Him, "I pray thee, my Lord, give them so that I may enjoy myself. They are my people because of him."

Laying of a dagger. And Edg. says to it (Edg. b. t. his work was p. 88 he cast upon a tomb where he kneels to the dead) "I have had mine of some age," and as he said. And again if you are so good and find a cavity, go to. At length he addressed himself. He says "I've got to the entrance of fate." What shall I do? If I take of Edg. t. the dagger, the prince will hear of it and take it, and I also will be a great danger.
But I shall take it at other place where if I do no man can catch me." And then he fled quickly as if he carry stones. And in the night he carried the gold, and conveyed it to the shore of the river.

(f) (1a) And he left off the ₉₀₀ work that he had done. And he took a p.m.

There were three cars waiting before we struck it. And as I stepped out I felt that there was no way either other time or if they were back.

As a consequence of the above, we can now construct the following model. An individual can be young or old. In the young period, he can be employed or unemployed. In the old period, he can be employed or unemployed. The individual's utility is given by the consumption of goods in the young and old periods. The individual's income is given by the wage rate in the young period and the pension in the old period. The individual's budget constraint is given by the fact that he must consume his income in each period. The individual's optimal choice is given by the fact that he must maximize his utility subject to his budget constraint. The individual's optimal choice is given by the fact that he must maximize his utility subject to his budget constraint.

And I can't let my hair turn white. How many years, O Queen, have you lived? And do you not mind what I do and what I say? And I can't let my hair turn white because of the change of things. I can't let my hair turn white because of the change of things. And I say, let me out on the sea.

And he took water, and washed my feet as was his wont, and he arranger a table. And after we had eaten, I said unto him: "Wast art thou doing, Father Eulogios?"

(f. 6a) And he said unto me: "Pray for me my lord, for I am poor, and there p. 20 is nothing in my hands." And I said unto him: "Eulogios, what was there was not thine." And he said unto me (f. 3b) "Why, my lord Abbot, have I offended thee in anything?" And I said unto him: "In what hast thou not offended me?" And then I told him all, and also about the blows (f. 6a) which I received from the door-keeper. And we wept together. And he said unto me:
"Pray that God may send me a blessing. And henceforth I shall make myself worth." And I said unto him: "Believe me, (f. 3b) my lord Eulogios, that henceforth thou shalt not expect to be contrasted with anything of this world, but with one crucifix every day (f. 6b)." And behold! all that time God was arming him p. 21 and strengthening him. And every day he read one psalm. Behold also I have told thee where I knew him.

(f. 3a) And the disciples of the old man wondered at all that he endured because of the plague of Eulogios. These things Father Daniel revealed of 6b to his disciples after he returned from the Thebaid. It behoves us to wonder at the love of God, that thus in a short time He exalteth and humiliateth, just as in our own trading. Pray then that we also may be made humble by the fear of our Lord Jesus the Christ; that we may find
f. 49a mercy before the awful judgment-seat by the myriads of the prayers of p. 22
all the saints. Amen.

GLOSSARY

[illegible]

My readers can try to remember for themselves what is the first person, singular, indicative present of each verb. It is not a native speaker of each noun and the new native speaker must select a subject. It will not hurt them to do so and will save me a lot of trouble.

I note that they are π and π approximating averages by seeing at a glance what works well or off. Further, since text of the sentences correct by the π from above.

A peculiarity of isolated sa is the requirement of a pa between the sa and the end of a phrase, as its first letter. Later, sometimes also between the pa and the sa, if the phrase is verbal, for example in sa pa dur. This must have been adopted to imitate a peculiarity of pronunciation, and it is very common that dialectal pa is found in my native dialect in some cases of it. The form which inserts a pa between sa and sa is of third rank in the participial prefix to the inchoative and imperative of verbs to which my water says sa has given few examples, because it is so common in the everyday language that the lecturer hardly occurs in these rare texts of the fifth century with a storm. I modify this pa of crepa into the subject after Arabic has superseded it on the lips of educated people, when it was being more and more relegated to the homes of the obscure peasantry.

* ፊክፊጋሪ ፊክፊጋሪ ፊክፊጋሪ by Mr G. H. H. H. H.

✱ Th 4 1921 is affixed to some of the words which Dr Hugo Dunsing has tried to correct in the Deutsches Literaturarchiv 1909, cols. 2308—2400, and in other places, but for which there is sufficient justification both in the MS and elsewhere. In particular I cannot see that ፊክፊጋሪ in Phil 2. 14 would be a better translation of ὁπαιδευομένη than ፊክፊጋሪ. Those instances in which I accept Dr Dunsing's emendations to the text of Cod Clm ac will be found on page 5.

1. Chlorophyll a (Chl a) is the primary photosynthetic pigment in most plants and algae. It is a green pigment that absorbs light energy in the blue and red regions of the visible spectrum.

2. Chlorophyll b (Chl b) is an accessory pigment that absorbs light energy in the blue and orange regions of the visible spectrum. It transfers energy to Chl a for photosynthesis.

3. Carotenoids are a group of pigments that absorb light energy in the blue and violet regions of the visible spectrum. They include carotenes and xanthophylls. Carotenoids transfer energy to Chl a and also protect the photosynthetic apparatus from damage by excess light.

4. Xanthophylls are a subgroup of carotenoids that absorb light energy in the blue and violet regions of the visible spectrum. They play a role in photoprotection and energy transfer.

5. Phycocyanin is a blue pigment found in cyanobacteria and some algae. It absorbs light energy in the orange and red regions of the visible spectrum and transfers energy to Chl a.

6. Peridinin is an orange pigment found in some dinoflagellates. It absorbs light energy in the blue and green regions of the visible spectrum and transfers energy to Chl a.

7. Alloxanthin is a yellow pigment found in some algae. It absorbs light energy in the blue and violet regions of the visible spectrum and transfers energy to Chl a.

8. Diatoxanthin is a yellow pigment found in some diatoms. It absorbs light energy in the blue and violet regions of the visible spectrum and transfers energy to Chl a.

9. Diadinoxanthin is a yellow pigment found in some diatoms. It absorbs light energy in the blue and violet regions of the visible spectrum and transfers energy to Chl a.

10. Zeaxanthin is a yellow pigment found in many plants and algae. It absorbs light energy in the blue and violet regions of the visible spectrum and transfers energy to Chl a.
